A graduate of Ohio University, Dr. Caudill started his career in the medical field while an undergraduate student.

“I started in a program at a local hospital. It was an opportunity for those in pre-medical fields to work in various hospital departments,” he said.

While working on his degree in Biological Science, Dr. Caudill made the decision to pursue a career in general surgery.

“I spent a little time in emergency medicine, but I kept returning to general surgery. With general surgery, I have the ability to work with so many colleagues and specialties” Dr. Caudill said.

“General surgery is hands-on. You have the ability to treat disease hands-on. I have always liked helping the community in that way.”

After finishing medical school at Ohio University, Dr. Caudill completed his residency at POH Regional Medical Center in Pontiac, MI. While completing his residency, Dr. Caudill participated in many educational programs for the detection and treatment of breast cancer.

“In addition to breast cancer, I have also a special interest in endoscopy and minimally invasive laparoscopic surgery, including hernia repair and abdominal surgery.”

Growing up in a small town, Dr. Caudill says he and his wife chose PCMC because the community is similar.

“We were looking for a place that had strong health care outside of the big cities,” he said.

Dr. Caudill and his wife have a 10 month old son named Maks.

“We’re very excited to be in the community,” he added.

Dr. Caudill is now accepting new patients.
